English

Look at your notes and poster from yesterday.
Today we are going to study rhetorical questions, a sentence type that is often used in this type of persuasive writing

A rhetorical question is used in writing that isn't dialogue, as there is nobody to answer the question. They are usually designed to talk to the reader. It allows the reader a moment to pause and think about the question.

*Make some of your own rhetorical questions about the dangers of plastic pollution. Look back on your notes and poster from yesterday's lesson.

*You may like to use these sentence starters to help you or you can think of your own.

Do you really think...

What about...

Why not...

Do we need to...

Who doesn't...

How could you possibly...

Who can deny...

Did you know...

Examples

Do you really think you need to use plastic bags?

Who doesn't enjoy swimming in the sea?

What about the safety of sea creatures?

Did you know that every year 8 million tonnes of plastic end up in our planet's oceans?

Going further

Explain to someone in your house which of these questions is a rhetorical question?

Do you want sugar in your tea?

What's the price of this t-shirt?

Who doesn't feel like crying about it?

Week 1 – Lesson 3 – Tenths

Watch the video and then answer the questions by clicking on the 'Get the Activity' tab to download the worksheet. Don't worry if you can't print it, just write the answers in your home learning book and draw the shapes out in there.

You can check your answers on the same page where the video is saved under 'Get the Answers'.

Geography

This term we are learning about oceans. We are going to start by finding some basic facts. Today you will need to find the name of the 5 major oceans of the world. Try drawing a map of the world and labelling the oceans.

Challenge: Name the 5 seas or oceans around the UK.
